About the Company

This dynamic digital subscription company provides online learning resources, productivity software, and personal development programs to users around the world. With a mission to deliver fast, helpful support without the hassle of phone queues, the company is expanding its remote-first customer support team. They are hiring for entry level live chat remote jobs specifically to help new and existing customers via chat and email—never over the phone.

Position Overview

Searching for entry level live chat remote jobs no degree required? Here's your chance to get a real start in remote support without complicated interviews or call center scripts. You'll handle customer questions, billing updates, login help, and product navigation issues using a structured chat and email platform.

Your Core Responsibilities

- Respond to customer inquiries through live chat and email dashboards
- Help users troubleshoot login problems, update billing, redeem discounts, and navigate accounts
- Follow templated scripts and internal workflows for efficient, accurate responses
- Escalate complex or technical issues to senior support teams when necessary
- Accurately document case notes and tag conversations for future reference
- Maintain a supportive, brand-aligned tone in all communications

Why You'll Love This Job

- No degree needed. Skills and training matter, not diplomas
- No calls. All support happens through writing—chat and email only
- Immediate start. Training and onboarding move quickly
- Flexible scheduling. Pick the hours that fit your life
- Weekly pay. Get paid every Friday for hours worked
